RUDMAN MAY BE JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED...

After all of these years as an Observer on the scene we have come to the conclusion that the true Kansas test for almost any thing is to sit back and study the people that oppose whatever it is. When you get all the crowd sorted in "for it" and "agin it" groups you can pretty well bet the furor of whether it is good or otherwise.

The Grand Rudman solution to the National Deffysht Disgrace appeared at first something designed to pass the buck by both the Congress and the Administration. It was obvious that neither side had the intestinal fortitude to wield the prancing knife to get income and out go anywhere near the same. It looked more like a meal ax approach to the problem that defied reason insofar as the Government was concerned.

The dust and hardly settled after the Grand Rudman skurish until it appears the principal opposition to it is

Stock Quits As Secretary, Lyng Secret-Runner

BY TED GOULDY.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block (D-Ill.) announced effective Feb. 1 that he was leaving his post for one that for many months has been in Washington and other parts of the country. Block has reportedly been busy with the White House staff and the agricultural matters and has been reported mutual for some time.

Block stated he was not going back to a farming operation in Illinois, saying he was doing a great job of running the diversified business. Block's plans are spread, but generally it is believed he has been laying the groundwork for taking over the operations and his resignation has given strength to this speculation.

Block Lyng, a one time assistant secretary and a close friend of President Reagan, who served as assistant secretary in California under then Governor Reagan, is considered the odds-on favorite for the job. He has in the past expressed interest in the job of Secretary of Agriculture and undoubtedly be given strong

Fed Cattle Stronger, Hogs Moved Higher At Markets Monday

Market supplies of slaughter cattle and hogs were considerably smaller Monday at the Central Markets. Prices of fed steers and heifers were stronger with rates from firm to as much as 50¢ to $1 higher at most points. Those reporting lower prices generally were going back to last Monday for comparisons. Slaughter cows and hogs were also firm to stronger at most of these markets. Some improvements in the carcass beef trade helped move the limited offering of fed steers and heifers.

Hogs were higher by around 50¢ to $1 at most of the markets. Price trends, quotations on choice and prime steers

Observance of Texas Sesquicentennial, Strong Livestock Shows, Many Sales, Roundout Business, Entertainment Program

The 80th annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show will begin its 12-day run Jan. 22, and continue through Feb. 2, at the Will Rogers Memorial Complex in Fort Worth.

Shows of the past will be foremost at the livestock exhibition and its accompanying 23 performances of the World's Original Indoor Rodeo. The entire 1986 program has been coupled with the 150th birthday observance for the State of Texas.

The gala "Stampede and Howl" celebration will be the first major event in Fort Worth to be presented as part of the Texas Sesquicentennial year.

Each performance of the rodeo in Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum will feature a segment, especially choreographed to depict segments of Texas history.

Featuring a wide range of talent by a number of professional showmen from Arizona and California, as well as native American Indians, the parades will make history "come alive" in flashbacks from the Old West when the cowboy was king. Louisiana cattle rounded wild on the prairies, and the pioneer, despite wrestling for a livelihood from a forbidding frontier, found time to enjoy life.

The elaborate staging, using colorful, specially designed costumes, will begin with a drastically different presentation of the opening rodeo ceremonies, a Sesquicentennial Grand Entry, and conclude with the exceptional finale and the last fall out of the bucking chute.

It captures some of the brilliance and entertainment phenomenon of the 1936 Texas Centennial observance here. A once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, those who attend the Stock Show Rodeo are sure to qualify the entertainment as a "must see" program.

This special Sesquicentennial extravaganza will be produced by Ted Griffith, where the latter, week.

The forward, named in a 1936 cowboy Dick Griffith, played a significant part in the Fort Worth Centennial.

Months of preparation will come to fruition as the paths of yesteryear are crossed with the elaborate staging of the most exciting and dramatic western production by his Fort Worth in the last 50 years.

A presentation of such magnitude seems a fitting tribute to Fort Worth, where indoor rodeo was first introduced in 1918, and has since, through the years, world-wide recognition for trend-setting innovations and productions.

Herding the beginning of Stock Show festivities will be the All-Western Parade through downtown Fort Worth on Saturday, Jan. 18. The parade, scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. at the Tarrant County Court House, will march south on Houston Street to West 7th Street, east to Main Street, then north to the Court House.

Parade participants will include some 70 riding clubs from across the state, 25 North Central marching bands, and 85 horse-drawn vehicles, many being sponsored by area business firms.

Leading to the Western Heritage theme, motorized vehicles are not allowed in the lineup. Last year, more than 100,000 persons lined the streets to watch the two-hour parade.

Livestock exposition entries will number in excess of 15,000 head, featuring top quality animals from across the United States and several foreign countries. The parade and prize money for the livestock show and rodeo will be upwards of $400,000.

Daily judging will be conducted, beginning Tuesday, Jan. 21, and concluding on Sunday, Feb. 2. The judging schedule will include classes for beef cattle, horses, sheep, swine, dairy cattle and goats, donkeys, mules, poultry, rabbits and pigeons.

The livestock show, since 1941, has been held on the 100-acre Will Rogers Memorial Complex, offering over 42 acres of covered, all-weather judging and exhibit buildings. The complex is the largest municipally owned facility of its kind in the nation.

Founded in 1896, the Stock Show is the oldest continuously held livestock exposition in the nation. A non-profit, educational organization, the show annually plies its profits into scholarship funds and improvement programs for the city-owned complex. To date, more than $8 million has been utilized in various improvement projects.

A number of educational exhibits are planned for the 1986 show. The FFA Children's Barnyard, a favorite stop of thousands of Stock Show visitors, will be open daily during the show.

Futures Insight Week Ending Jan. 9

Train wreck, train wreck! That's what traders were yelling this week. And it's no wonder! The Dow Jones experienced its biggest one day drop in history on Wednesday, falling over 33 points on heavy volume. It's not just the stock market "bombs" that were being bloodied. There were also sharp losses in the livestock complex and the petroleum complex on the same day.

There was genuine panic in the markets this week. Traders keep searching for some new piece of news that will explain the falling prices, but there's none to be found. As I've said before, markets don't need news to go up or down, just the right kind of psychology.

To give you an idea of just how big a break the Dow had this week, let me put it in these terms: The stock index futures contracts fell just short of 1,000 points in one day. That's the equivalent of soybeans falling $1/bushel in one day or the cattle market dropping $11 in one day. Now you know why there was panic in the pits.

The cattle market is a mess! Actually the entire livestock complex is falling apart. Even though there is good wholesale movement of carcasses and boxed beef, both cash and futures prices continue to decline. Thus far I'd have to say that 1986 is a repeat of 1985.

The market psychology here in the cattle market is very bearish. Cattle and hog slaughter is running heavy and the animal weights are a bit more than the "fills" would like to see. The trend for prices is down and the market is demoralized. Maintain shorts and hedges and hang on! We've got a Tiger by the tail! I've mentioned to readers in this column as well as to my subscribers that this cattle market is in trouble. Well into February. Thus far everything is right on course.

Next week I'll put forth some projections regarding price direction for the first and second and third quarter of 1986.

Grain traders on the Board of Trade are watching the weather patterns in Brazil with a great deal of interest. Unless substantial amounts of rain fall in the next several weeks, the damage to their crops will be irreversible. There is little to say about the grains at this time. It's a weather market for all the grains and we'll just have to see what Mother Nature has in store for the markets.

My only advice for the Board of Trade members is to treat all the markets as a trading affair. Buy the breaks and lighten up on the rallies. Keep in mind that there are soybean options as well as futures contracts. Either can be used, depending on your temperament and your pocketbook. But as always with the markets, use common sense and proper money management.

Which way from here? For the past several months I've been suggesting to readers of this column and to my subscribers that their approach to most markets should be one of caution. I have been very uncomfortable being a "bull" in any market. In some cases, I've looked pretty good with such advice. And in other cases that advice seemed "out of step" with what was going on in the marketplace.

During this time period I've suggested two things. First, that traders should view all markets that "rally" as selling opportunities. Second, it was my belief that all markets would be lower come spring than they are today. This approach has proven to be quite right and quite profitable. Therefore, continue to sell based on markets that "rally" and look for lower prices across the board come spring.

Following the Dow's recent decline this past week, I heard several "experts" say that such a fall was "healthy" for the market. I know several traders I have purchased stock index futures early Wednesday morning that did not feel "healthy" by the close of trading that day.

Trading Suggestions: 1. Aggressive traders should "lean" against the cotton market, buy Levittown cotton seed oil, cotton, and look for lower prices across the board come spring.

Please remember that by the time you read this column in the newspaper, it is approximately two weeks old. And two weeks old in this business is definitely ancient history.

World's Greatest Salesman Speaks At Brangus Convention

Dubbed as the world's greatest salesman, Joe Girard will join the International Brangus Breeders Association (IBBA) as the featured seminar speaker during their 30th annual convention in Houston, TX on February 18-21, 1986 at the convention headquarters, The Shamrock Hilton.

The noted motivational speaker and author, Girard has written How to Sell

Anything to Anybody, How to Sell Yourself and How to Sell Anything to Anybody (unpublished).

Girard's life and career are the American dream come true. Born into poverty, he was a failure for 35 years before he developed a unique selling strategy that made him an outstanding producer and brought him wealth and national acclaim.

In 1977, Girard sold more automobiles and trucks for the 12th consecutive year on a one-to-one basis than anyone else in the world. "All my sales were retail," he states emphatically, "one car at a time." No salesman has ever held both the auto and truck world's title during the same year.

In 1979, Joe sold 1,425 cars and trucks, a world's record which may never be broken. Joe is the only salesman listed in the Guinness section of The Guinness Book of World Records as the world's greatest salesman.

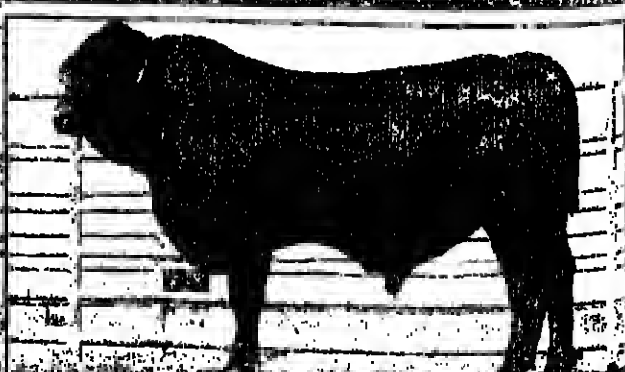

Girard's achievements have been written up in many national magazines and newspapers such as Newsweek, U.S.

Sale Of Champions Saturday, Feb. 1

To assure success at the annual Sale of Champions at the Southwestern Exposition and Fair Stock Show, wide-based community support is an all-important factor.

Each year, some 700 business firms and individuals come forward with enthusiastic financial support for the auction to guarantee that youth exhibitors of prize-winning animals at the Stock Show will receive above market prices.
"Contributors are justifiably proud to be participants in this strong community endeavor," said W. R. Wirt Jr., Stock Show president.

A planning meeting of the 50-member Agricultural Development Fund steering committee of the Stock Show is held in December each year to chart a drive to raise $80,000 to benefit the Sale of Champions. The 1986 sale is scheduled at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, in Barn 6 on the show grounds.

"Expressed support of our entire community, this committee, the Downtown Stock Show Auction Syndicate, and other interested persons each year assures a successful and rewarding sale for our young exhibitors," Watt said. "Many youngsters use auction proceeds to further their education."

Tax-deductible donations to the Fund are used in the annual sale which each year generated an average gross of almost $561,000 with some 1500 prize-winning steers, lambs and barrows being sold.

The Agricultural Development Fund was established in 1944 to instill confidence and offer encouragement to young people with the hope they will remain involved in the vast areas of the agricultural business. Charles W. Needham and Jack W. Ferrill serve as co-chairmen of the Fund's steering committee.

The demonstration will be conducted by Ma. Jaly Burkett, county extension agent for Tarrant County, and Mac McDaniels, well-known Texas chuck wagon cook.

Show's 'Stampede And Blowout' Celebrates Texas 150th Year

Shades of the past will be foremost at the 1986 Southwestern Exposition and Fair Stock Show, scheduled Jan. 22 through Feb. 2, at the Will Rogers Memorial Complex. Commemorating the 90th anniversary edition of the show with the 150th birthday celebration of Texas, the program will be Fort Worth's first major event of the Sesquicentennial year.

Remember the Alamo? And Goliath? And San Jacinto? "Sure" you say, "I saw the monuments." For those who were there in the early 1830's all those were real places. They were the Lexington and Concord for Texas, and serve as a remembrance of solid determination by a small group of people who believed in freedom as a way of life... need to govern their own destiny.

From a time when Texans took a stand for independence from Mexico, and even before, they were epitomized as independent individualists. Looking for challenge and a chance at a better life, many came from the middle mountain states.

The vast plains gave birth to a major industry, known as the cattle business. There was plenty of grass and water, and natural shelter for running cattle. The winters were somewhat mild, and the long growing season was a benefit. The industry, especially following the Civil War, became a mainstay for the state.

Experiences by the cowboy during long stays on the range gave way to many stories and tales that became somewhat of a tradition for the state. Too, the vastness of Texas, being the largest square mile state until 1959, afforded much opportunity for the cowboy.

Many of the vast land areas, secured from hostilities, were converted from strictly ranching operations to farming lands, giving way to an abundance of production for domestic and export consumption.

The state's early frontiers extended well north into areas that are now parts of several of the southwestern states. Using this resource, the infant Texas sold thousands of acres outside its present borders to pay off debts. Texas is the only state of the union to have survived a time as an independent nation.

Texas and the nation took on a new perspective in 1901 when the Spindletop oil field was discovered in the southwest part of the state. The boom was alive, and led to another wealth as well as added international recognition. More positive means of transportation also became available.

With the industrial revolution, Texas began to get its share of large cities, but continued to contrast with vast open lands on which to carry out a basic agricultural production business. Urban living became a lifestyle for many Texans, but they still maintained their ties with the land and the resources underlying it.

Crossing the paths of yesterday, a young man working with Stock Show officials will bring to fruition an elaborate staging of the most exciting and dramatic western production to hit Fort Worth since the 1936 Texas Centennial. This special Sesquicentennial extravaganza will be produced by Tad Griffith, and have overtones of the 1980 event in which his later father, world-renowned trick rider and all-around cowboy Dick Griffith, played an important part.

Styled as "Stampede and Blowout," the glimpse of Texas history in a series of vignettes through the recollection of a Texas cowboy will be presented with exceptional costuming, special horses and riders, and talents from a large number of top professional showmen at each of the 28 performances of the World's Original Indoor Rodeo.

The cowboy Griffith was born in Fort Worth, the son of Curley and Trouts Griffith, trick and fancy riders of the late 1800's. Dick made his debut as an entertainer in the Fort Worth Rodeo's trick and fancy riding contest in 1911 — at the second year of the indoor rodeo — at age 6. While still a teen-ager, he reaped honors for riding as well as becoming a top rider in the boys rail riding contest around the country.

In 1931, after the death of his father, Dick Griffith, who was living with his grandparents, sent in entry for money to enter the trick and fancy riding contest at the Fort Worth Rodeo. When he arrived, much to his dismay, there was no contest as the rodeo had dropped the contest and contracted for the trick riders. Practically stranded, he rented his horse to one of the contractors, and with the money entered the bull riding contest.

He had ridden his share of calves, but never a bull. Unplanned, Griffith, only 17, was the only bull rider to stay on all his stock and outdistanced the veterans by being named bull riding champion of the Fort Worth Rodeo.

Griffith was four times crowned the Rodeo Association of America world champion bull rider. He later was involved with the Cowboy's Turtle Association. When the Rodeo Cowboys Association was formed, Griffith was issued membership certificate No. 3, a card he held at his death on Aug. 10, 1984. At that time, he held the oldest membership card in the now Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Dick Griffith was associated with Verne Elliott in 1936 when the big "Frontier Days" celebration was held in Fort Worth as part of the Texas Centennial. He starred as a trick and fancy rider, and was featured with a number of other entertainment acts that included a Paint Horse Square Dance quadrille, giving birth to part of Tad Griffith's 1986 Fort Worth extravaganza.

Tad Griffith, who was named for famous lady trick rider, Tad Lucas, who now lives in Fort Worth, and often provided Dick Griffith with horses and practice arenas during his years of performing, has drawn from the "Frontier Days" program of 1936 to make "History come alive" at this year's Fort Worth Stock Show Rodeo.

The precise pageantry of each of this rodeo's major production enhancements will be reminiscent of the Old West, when the cowboy was king, the Loughnag rattle ran wild, and the pioneer, despite wrestling for a livelihood from a forbidding frontier, found time to enjoy life.

Each performance here in Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum will begin with a drastically different presentation of the opening ceremonies with a Ses-quicentennial Grand Entry, and concludes with the last full out of the bucking chutes.

Griffith's mother, Connie Griffith, has spent months and many hours designing each costume and supervising the hand sewing of each outfit. Especially trained animals will be brought here to add dimension to the presentation.

The cast, including a wide range of talent, will include specialty acts, as well as native Texans to provide a portrayal of a variety of historical events that can be found throughout the first 150 years of Texas.

A presentation of such magnitude seems fitting tribute to Fort Worth, where indoor rodeo was first introduced in 1918 and has attained, through the years, world-wide recognition for trend-setting innovations and productions.

If you expect perfection from people, your whole life is a series of disappointments, grumblings and complaints. If, on the contrary, you pitch your expectations low, taking folks as the inefficient creature which they are, you are frequently surprised by having them perform better than you had hoped.

A NEW ERA, A CONTINUOUS TRADITION, CONSTANT DEDICATION.

"Excellence in '85" was the catalyst of a new era in Polled Hereford history. The investment community, junior Polled Hereford members, and Polled Hereford breeders in twenty three states and three Canadian provinces joined the Pharris Team in a record setting event. It is with the same dedication that "Excellence '86" has been developed.

Hotline progeny have been dominant in the 1985 Sire Summary, in bull test centers, and in the show ring. Hotline calves dominated the 62nd National, the International Breeders Futurity and the 12th Junior National. In a continuing tradition "Excellence '86" will feature offspring from the source of Hotline genetics. Selling will be heifers bred to Hotline, Riser and Mainstream, the top of our 1985 calf crop and a selected few embryos and flushes from the Pharris Donors. The quality will again be the very best available.

We invite each of you to join us at the ranch for "Excellence '86," January 29, 1986 and the activities the evening before at the "International Extravaganza," featuring international cuisine and headliner entertainment. For more information and an invitation call our Hotline number 1-800-468-1239.

It was a somber overcast summer day when 18 Zebu bulls crossed the bridge linking Mexico with the U.S. at Hidalgo, TX. That event, the famous 1946 importation, marked the beginning of a new era in Bos Indicus cattle breeding in the United States.

Throughout the past 40 years, overwhelming progress has been made in improving the quality of Zebu cattle. The 40th Anniversary Sale is in celebration of the time and dedicated effort put forth by countless breeders sharing this common goal.

The 15 select females being offered exemplify 40 years of striving for constant improvement in quality. The 40th Anniversary Sale is a time to celebrate our accomplishments as a breed and share the genetics we have worked hard to develop.

Santa Circuit by Buddy Smith

I hope that your holiday season was as enjoyable as mine. As usual, we overate and are paying the consequences now. With all the shows and sales coming up, it shouldn't take long to work that off.

I understand that everyone who reads the Weekly Livestock Reporter does not appreciate the fact like I do that Texas is blessed with one of the finest institutions of higher learning in the state. I can't help but mention the fact that Texas A&M brought much fame to the Southwest. Concomitantly when they stopped the Heisman Trophy winner at the Cotton Bowl on New Year's day. How sweet it is! Gigs 'n' Angles!

"Stretch's Toot Toot" 39M, the Porter Rodgers' heifer that topped the 1984 Santa Syndicate sale and came back in 1985 to win most of that cost back and also was the second place Sweepstakes heifer, had her call on January 6th. You're asking yourself what is so special about that. Nothing except to her proud owners Double Circle Ranch, Drake Land and Cattle Company, and Cow Track W Ranch. The reason I bring it up is that people are always talking about the effects of the show road on cattle's fertility. She calving, while she was celebrating, she was nursing her live, healthy, unassisted at birth, 102 pounds at birth, daughter of "Gatorade" 3502. She has a tremendous udder and cleaned up within six hours after she calved. Not bad for a two year old that made all of the major shows in 1985. It looks like the "Halo" - "Stretch" combination is going to work. The first time you see her, let me know what you think.

The Santa Circuit lost a great man and breeder when E. C. Schwabe died last month. I remember him and "Mama" Schwabe clearing the dance floor at the South Texas State parties. I remember him on some fun quail hunts. I remember him as a breeder of good, sound, useful cattle, but most of all I remember him as a good man. The sympathy of all the breeders go out to the Schwabe family.

If you wonder how an old man wandered cowboy stays in good graces at the house, look at the "Big Dunk" pictures on page 60 of the January issue of The Santa Gertrudis Journal.

Start making plans for the upcoming sales. There are going to be some good ones.

STBBA Bull Sale Announced For January

Leo Casas, III, South Texas Beefmaster Breeders' Director of Marketing and Sales Management, announces the STBBA Annual Bull Sale to be held at Joe Freeman Coliseum on January 26, 1986, at 12:00 noon. Selling will be 100 Beefmaster Bulls, including several herd bull prospects for the purebred breeder. The sale will be preceded by an educational seminar on the advantages of using Beefmaster bulls and a presentation on the upgrading program by BBU officials. The upgrading program is a system by which a commercial man can upgrade his commercial herd by using Beefmaster bulls and eventually have all purebred cattle derived from his commercial base herd. Ranchers who have used this system successfully will be great speakers at the seminar. The seminar will start at 11:00 a.m. followed by a question and answer session, and then the sale promptly at 12:00 noon. "The National Cattlemen's Association is having its National Convention during the weekend of the 26th in San Antonio and we know we will attract many cattlemen and potential buyers for our sale. The seminar will be for the purpose of showing those folks how Beefmaster bulls can help them. Since our sale is closer to the springtime than most bull sales, we look for our sale to be one of the best of the year," says Casas. Con-

Gains. Why RALGRO® implants are making news in feedlot trials!

A recent independent study of finishing steers compared the effects of Synovex®-S implants and RALGRO implants on feedlot performance and carcass characteristics. This study represents the largest, most comprehensive cattle implant trial on record.

Research showed cattle implanted with RALGRO first, then reimplanted with RALGRO, to have gained more with greater feed efficiency than any of the other implant sequences tested. In fact, the RALGRO/RALGRO sequence's total gain in pounds per head was 12 pounds greater than the Synovex/Synovex implant sequence. The RALGRO sequence also had better feed efficiency over control animals as compared to the Synovex sequence.

Impressive results like these confirm what other studies have shown—RALGRO is the cattle implant of choice for finishing cattle. Contact your RALGRO representative for more information. Or write or call RALGRO, P.O. Box 207, Terre Haute, IN 47808; phone 1-800-457-0871.

If You Raise Coastal For Hay Or Grazing... YOU NEED The Revolutionary PORCUPINE®

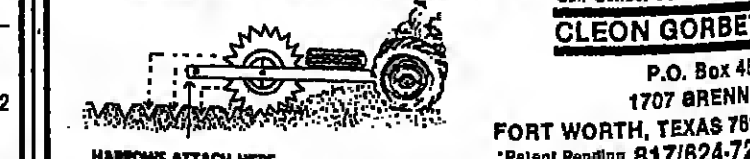

Or Porcupine Jr.
Here's how it works...

The "PORCUPINE" SOIL AERATOR is designed to promote better Grass growth. Greater soil water holding ability, better penetration of Fertilizer into the soil and prevent hardpan.

Simply use this tool to Aerate your pastures all during the year, especially before fertilizing. The SOIL AERATOR punches thousands of airtight 4 to 5 1/2" deep into the soil thus permitting the Fertilizer to get down to the roots and not wash or blow away on topsoil. The pointed spikes are welded in a pattern on the unit to permit more soil penetration and maximum ground "punching." This allows more water and moisture holding capacity for faster root growth. You can also attach hole harvesters behind the SOIL AERATOR to break up cow chips and spread them at the same time... all this without any damage to the field, any new series or present growth. Wheels are mounted on the tongue of the unit for transportation of the AERATOR. Simply Jack it up and place the wheels under it for easy movement from pasture to pasture or ranch to ranch.

An 80 horsepower minimum tractor is recommended to pull the standard aerator. We also manufacture a smaller model of the Porcupine, which can be pulled with a 46 horsepower tractor. This model is 4 foot narrower in width, but has the same punching power as the standard Porcupine.

New Hoof Protection Great News For Horsemen

Hoof Bond, using the latest breakthrough in technology to form a flexible, molecular bond with the hoof wall, now provides hoof protection never before possible and promises to revolutionize hoof preventative maintenance. The maximum pressure a horse puts on his hoof is 3,000 lbs. per square inch. Hoof Bond has a tensile strength of 4,500 lbs. per square inch.

By actually becoming an integral part of the hoof wall, Hoof Bond strengthens the hoof and prevents the loss of vital electrolyte fluids in the hoof wall which can lead to cracking and splitting, as well as loss of elasticity in the hoof. Hoof Bond also seals out road salts and other corrosive agents along with excessive moisture which can lead to the weakening of the hoof wall. The formula is easily applied in liquid form, and when exposed to sun light, it cures in seconds to form a durable patina. Its long lasting action, requiring application only when the horse is trimmed, makes Hoof Bond practical and economical for preventative maintenance on all horses.

Through American technology it gives us great pleasure to state that a nail should never be driven into a horse's hoof, and a greater pleasure letting you, the veterinarian, the first to know our breakthrough.

Hoof Bond is manufactured by Hoof Bond, Inc., 724 Main Street, Hyannis, MA 02601 - and is available through most veterinary suppliers.

Sulfur Fertilization May Improve Livestock Performance

Sulfur fertilization of forage crops may lead to improved nitrogen utilization by ruminants, according to research conducted at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

In a two-year study co-sponsored by Allied Corporation in Hopewell, VA, and The Sulphur Institute in Washington, D. C., sheep fed corn silage fertilized with ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S) "showed a dramatic improvement in N utilization," reports Dr. Vivian Allen, a researcher with VPI and coordinator of the study. Additionally, fertilization with ammonium sulfate increased corn yields by seven percent.

Allen explains that adding sulfur fertilizer to forage crops can increase protein and may improve dry matter digestibility, which helps animals digest feed and utilize nitrogen. "Even if a farmer doesn't get yield increases, it may be worthwhile for him to add sulfur to his crops if it improves protein content and digestibility," she comments. Metabolism trials with sheep revealed that animals used nitrogen more effectively when their feed supplied the dietary sulfur compared to direct sulfur supplementation as sodium sulfate.

According to Allen, feeding livestock a sulfur supplement may not produce the same benefit as feeding livestock forage fertilized with sulfur.

The Virginia Tech research group found that making split applications of sulfur did not increase protein content or digestibility any more than single applications.

Farmer should test forage. A large number of the corn silage samples from throughout the state of Virginia have been found to be low in sulfur, indicating a widespread sulfur deficiency, according to research previously conducted in Virginia.

"We can create a deficiency with high intensity farming," says Allen, explaining that higher crop yield remove more nutrients from the soil. But while many farmers replenish their land with nitrogen, phosphate, and potash, many unintentionally neglect sulfur.

and sleep producers, should be quite interested in improved digestibility and N utilization because it can have important effects on milk production and feed efficiency," comments Allen.

Choosing the sulfur source
When choosing a sulfur fertilizer, growers should first consider other nutrient needs. Many sulfur sources available today also contain nitrogen or potassium. Examples are ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24.5) and potassium-magnesium sulfate (0-22-22-11.5).

"If you need both nitrogen and sulfur, a fertilizer like ammonium sulfate would probably be your best buy," says Tom Henschel, agronomist with Allied Corporation. Ammonium sulfate can be used in either dry or liquid fertilizer programs.

Henschel points out that ammonium sulfate contains sulfur in the sulfate form, the only form that crop roots can take up and utilize. As a result, the sulfur found in ammonium sulfate can be taken up by the crop more quickly than the elemental form, which needs up to several weeks — or even months — to convert into the sulfate form for uptake.

Gehl Introduces Skid Loader With 2,050-Lb. Load Capacity

West Bend, WI — Gehl Company has added "strength at the top" of its full-line of industrial skid loaders with the introduction of its new Model 6620. With an SAE lift rating of 2,050 lbs., a lift height of 123 in. and a reach of 36 in., it's the biggest in the Gehl lineup, which now includes models with capacities ranging from 750 lbs. to 2,050 lbs.

Calf Saver Effective In Reviving New-Born Calves

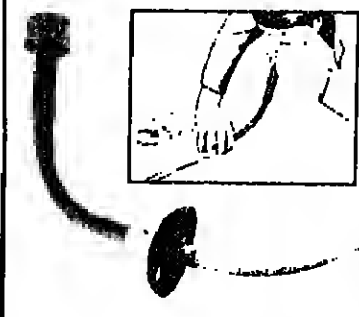

Veterinarians agree that many new-born animals with a feeble heart beat due to respiratory problems or failure can often be saved by inflating the lungs.

Fuerst Brothers, Inc. is marketing an inexpensive product called a Calf Saver — a flexible tube with a mouthpiece — that allows a safe "mouth to mouth" resuscitation.

"The Calf Saver was developed in England in cooperation with the Veterinary Science Department of the University of Bristol, England," says Lea Lutz, Executive Vice President of Fuerst Brothers.

The Calf Saver features a non-return valve that protects the operator from return mucus or gases; a rubber throat insert that reaches just past the soft palate to prevent stomach inflation; and a pliable "mouth stop cap" that closes off the nose and mouth, while giving the proper depth of insertion.

The Calf Saver, easily stored in barn or pick up, has been thoroughly proven in the field by both herdsmen and veterinarians," says Lutz. For more information, contact Fuerst Brothers, Inc., P.O. Box 366 C, Oregon, IL 61061 or call 815-732-3225.

Equine Product Saves Dollars For Dairymen According To Veterinarians

The three reasons you kill a dairy cow:

1. Lacks reproductive glands when it's born.
2. Maintenance exceeds milk production.
3. Bad hooves.

The average herd on the east coast is seventy-two (72) cows, forty (40) being milked. The dairyman spends up to three thousand, six hundred ($3,600.00) dollars on hoof problems to the veterinarian, and loses one and a half (1 1/2) cows per year, at an approximate cost of one thousand, five hundred ($1,500.00) dollars per year. If the dairy cows' hooves have cracks or discomforts, which occurs in twenty-four per cent (24%) to twenty-six per cent (26%) of the herd, the dairyman loses ten percent (10%) to fifty per cent (50%) milk production.

If the hoofs are bonded when the dairy cows are trimmed, which occurs twice a year, up to eleven thousand, two hundred ($11,200.00) dollars can be put back into the dairyman's pocket.

Hoof Bond is manufactured by Hoof Bond, Inc., 724 Main Street, Hyannis, MA 02601 — and is available through most leading suppliers. In Canada, Hoof Bond is being distributed by — Canadian Packers and Griffith Saddlery & Leather.

Gain Advantages Of Legumes BY Overseeding Into Grass Pastures

Producers who want to give a shot of life to sagging grass pastures should consider renovation with a legume, advises William Templeton, former director, U.S. regional pasture research laboratory, USDA.

There are three advantages to such rejuvenation, says Templeton. It increases forage production, improves forage quality and eliminates the need for nitrogen fertilizer.

"Using a deep-rooted legume such as alfalfa in the mixture with grass commonly produces forage yields equal to those of pure grass that receives 200 to 300 lb. or more per acre of annual nitrogen," Templeton points out.

"What's more, crude protein in the harvested forage of an alfalfa-grass mixture may equal that in grass receiving even more nitrogen... 300 to 400 lb."

Templeton says the carrying capacity of legume-grass mixtures may be lower than that of grass pastures receiving very high rates of N, but considering the cost of the N, the grass-legume mixtures may be equal in profitability.

The forage specialist notes that grasses fertilized with N are easier to manage but says the extra cost is a high price to pay.

He says legume-grass mixtures need no nitrogen if managed properly. In fact, nitrogen application shortens the life of legumes.

According to Templeton, high quality forages are highly digestible, can be consumed in large quantities and are utilized efficiently. Most legumes are superior to grasses in these respects.

In addition, legume forages contain greater concentrations of calcium, magnesium and certain other minerals. That all translates into better animal performance — improved gains, increased milk production and, in some cases, superior reproduction.

In British research projects, animals grazing legumes or grass-legumes had higher gains in 36 of 43 comparisons.

Florida testing showed there was better

Gain Advantages Of Legumes BY Overseeding Into Grass Pastures

Producers who want to give a shot of life to sagging grass pastures should consider renovation with a legume, advises William Templeton, former director, U.S. regional pasture research laboratory, USDA.

There are three advantages to such rejuvenation, says Templeton. It increases forage production, improves forage quality and eliminates the need for nitrogen fertilizer.

"Using a deep-rooted legume such as alfalfa in the mixture with grass commonly produces forage yields equal to those of pure grass that receives 200 to 300 lb. or more per acre of annual nitrogen," Templeton points out.

"What's more, crude protein in the harvested forage of an alfalfa-grass mixture may equal that in grass receiving even more nitrogen... 300 to 400 lb."

Templeton says the carrying capacity of legume-grass mixtures may be lower than that of grass pastures receiving very high rates of N, but considering the cost of the N, the grass-legume mixtures may be equal in profitability.

The forage specialist notes that grasses fertilized with N are easier to manage but says the extra cost is a high price to pay.

He says legume-grass mixtures need no nitrogen if managed properly. In fact, nitrogen application shortens the life of legumes.

According to Templeton, high quality forages are highly digestible, can be consumed in large quantities and are utilized efficiently. Most legumes are superior to grasses in these respects.

In addition, legume forages contain greater concentrations of calcium, magnesium and certain other minerals. That all translates into better animal performance — improved gains, increased milk production and, in some cases, superior reproduction.

In British research projects, animals grazing legumes or grass-legumes had higher gains in 36 of 43 comparisons.

Florida testing showed there was better

Gehl Introduces New Fingerwheel Hay Rake

Ranking the hay rather than brushing through it. "The individual tines walk around rocks and other obstacles and go into depressions to get all the hay, even on the roughest ground," says Phillips. "The closely spaced tines rake from center hubs, eliminating wind break of feet, allowing dust to drift through. They flex along their entire length. As a result, they last much longer than short-legged tines," Phillips notes. "And no necessary wind guards are required to prevent crops from tangling around the wheel hubs."

Phillips emphasizes that the spring-loaded fingerwheels follow the contours of the ground and perfectly of each other and of the main frame. This design feature greatly reduces extreme "bouncing" at high speed.

Raking width and transport adjustments are made by positioning the drawbar and the left-hand wheel. Adjustments can be made on the rake drawbar to position the rake behind the tractor. And four wheel settings provide a choice of raking widths.

A hydraulic cylinder, operated from the tractor seat, raises all fingerwheels to transport position or lowers them to working position. All wheels lower and raise at the same time.

Two models are available: one with seven fingerwheels and a raking width of 12 feet; and one with nine fingerwheels with a raking width of 16 feet.

For additional information on the new Model 207 fingerwheel hay rake, contact Richard Burkhardt, Gehl Company, West Bend, WI 53095, (414) 834-9461.

ter economy of land production on clover-grass pasture fertilized at a moderate level (500 lb. per acre annually of 0-12-12) than on more heavily fertilized clover-grass pasture and markedly better than on all-grass pastures. It also showed a higher weaning percentage (84% versus 64%) on the clover-grass pastures.

Furder research found a higher conception rate (92% versus 72%) for cows on fescue-clover in contrast to those on pure fescue. Further, the average daily gain of the calves was higher on the mixture (1.83 lb. versus 1.25 lb.) weaning weights were up substantially (428 lb. versus 353 lb.).

Technology has made it easier to renovate grass pastures with legumes, notes Templeton. He says alfalfa, red and white clover and birdsfoot trefoil are the most commonly used legumes with cool-season perennial grasses. Red and white clovers are the easiest to establish, followed by birdsfoot trefoil and then alfalfa.

Although the ideal pH varies among temperate-climate legumes, a range of 6.3 to 6.8 is reasonable.

Legumes require more available potassium (K) than do grasses, says

Templeton. Further, legumes growing with grasses are more likely to show K deficiency symptoms than pure stands of legume. Since grasses have greater ability to absorb K from the soil, forage legumes are sensitive to shade and thus when legumes are introduced into thick stands of grass it's necessary to reduce the shading by the grass. That can be done by herbicides or by close grazing.

Templeton says a tool called a Puert flexible tine harrow works well for scarifying a pasture that needs renovation. "The Puert harrow has a series of 3-inch long tines linked together in a blanket-like design. It has no rigid frame, as do most harrows, and thus snakes over the contours of the ground." It prepares an even seedbed without disturbing existing healthy grass growth. As for time of seeding, Templeton suggests late winter and early spring broadcasts. Alfalfa is the best choice for hay or stage in much of the country. But that crop requires well-drained soil and a proper pH level.

Red clover is more tolerant of wet soils than alfalfa and birdsfoot trefoil even more so. Both are also more tolerant of acidity.

Once established, properly fertilized and managed legume-grass pastures are highly productive and easily carry a cow and calf per acre during much of the growing season, says Templeton. "But manure accumulates and that causes spotty grazing," he points out. "A flexible harrow can distribute the manure and its nutrients, improving the uniformity and quality of grazing."

A USDA report from Beltsville, Maryland, reads: "In summary, it appears the use of a flexible line harrow shows considerable promise for reducing the loss of feed lost due to cattle droppings."

St. Joseph, Mo. — A free brochure now available from Anchor Animal Health discusses producer strategies for fly control and pinkeye prevention. Pinkeye and horn flies are estimated to cost the U.S. cattle industry about $1 billion annually. In an individual operation, the problems can destroy narrow profit margins.

The brochure covers problem identification, costs, products and customized programs. New tools such as Anchor's combination pinkeye vaccines and BAR FORCE tags are highlighted. Use of older tools, such as dust bags, for controlling insect resistance also is explained.

dorsement from some livestock and farming organizations. The current Deputy Secretary of Agriculture John Norton is also mentioned as a possibility, but is presently embroiled in a controversy. He is trying to have conflict of interest regulations relaxed to enable two large farming operations, which he owns in Arizona and California, to be allowed to participate in farm programs. The likelihood of this is considered remote.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Kretz is also considered to have strong backing and his Department experience as well as commodity market service in his background. Others include Robert Delano, who will leave his post as president of the American Farm Bureau Federation this week. Sundry Delano endorsed Lyng for the post. Others mentioned include Robert Ray, governor of Iowa and Charlie Scruggs, editor of Progressive Farmer magazine.

Remember Humphrey, the wrong way whale? Everybody thought he was such a dummy. I'd give a lot to know the name of his publicity agent. On second thought, I think I know and it's much more start paying closer attention in church.

I'm not the only one who thinks that way. Lots of experts, when asked why Humphrey did it, answered, "God only knows."

I can just hear St. Peter saying, "Look, Boss, all the reports are finally in and we've definitely confirmed a malfunction in model WH-10C."

"What do you mean salt water damage?" He was in the Sacramento River... yeah, well you didn't make it keep enough in spots.

"I know Salt Lake City is in that direction but we don't have any of that model there and the lake is too far inland."

"No, besides the Mormons would take it as a moral victory. Remember the

THE TEXAS EXPERIENCE

The Search for The Fabulous

In 1528, the ill-fated Spanish expedition to "La Florida," consisting of five homestead boats, was shipwrecked on the coast of Texas. This landing on the "Isle of Malhado," (most likely Galveston Island), marked the first recorded European intrusion into the present state of Texas. Of about 300 Spaniards who survived, historian William Griggs recounts, only four men eventually lived through sickness and encounters with hostile coastal Indians.

These four, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, Andres Dorantes de Carraoca, Alonso del Castillo Maldonado, and Estevanico, a black slave of Dorantes, lived among the Texas Indians for nearly eight years, acting as healers and medicine men, traveling from tribe to tribe, the four eventually made their way through Texas back to Spanish settlements on the east coast of New Spain, or what is now Mexico.

It was Cabeza de Vaca who perpetuated rumors of seven cities of gold on the frontier. New Spain Viceroy Antonio de Mendoza purchased Estevanico from Dorantes and sent him as a guide for Friar Marcos de Niza, who was to make a preliminary search for the seven cities. Estevanico was killed by Huachuco Indians, but Friar Marcos returned to Mexico more convinced than ever that the legendary riches did indeed exist.

To locate and claim the wealth that he was sure could be found, Mendoza appointed Francisco Vazquez de Coronado, Governor of New Galicia, to lead an expedition into the unknown country in the North. The army of 1,000 men began their journey at the small Mexican town of Compostela in February, 1540. Traveling north with 1,500 horse and mules, the largest European expedition ever to penetrate the region conquered pueblo after pueblo, devastating the Indians with more powerful military tactics.

Historian David Weber notes that Coronado called upon the Pueblo Indians to "acknowledge the Catholic Church as the ruler and superior of the whole world, and the high priest called the Pope, and in his name the king and queen of Spain." He promised kind treatment to those who acquiesced and war and slavery to those who resisted. Coronado lived up to his promise with the hundreds of Pueblo who resisted.

Some historians believe that the Pueblos conspired with the Plains Indian whom the Spaniards called "The Turk" to lead the expedition east out of Pueblo country in search of a land called Quivira. "El Turco" convinced the Spaniards that they would find great wealth there. After a Mass of Thanksgiving in Polo Duro Canyon, they continued the search for gold, moving into present-day Kansas. They did find Quivira. But it was only a modest Wichita Indian village and did not hold treasure of gold.

Disheartened, the expedition turned south and headed back to Mexico torturing and executing "The Turk" for his trickery along the way. Coronado reported to the King of Spain, "I have done all that I could possibly do to serve Your Majesty and to discover a country where God our Lord might be served and the royal patrimony of Your Majesty increased."

Some of the crowded shopping malls would be more aptly named if they were called shopping malls.
